

Imperial Court of Justice of TREDT

Imperial Order #4

Division of the TREDT Legislative House

By the Grace and Authority of the Imperial Court of Justice of TREDT it hereby Divides the TREDT Legislative House into the House of Representatives of the Members of Union and the Council of States of Union.

Dated: 07/07/2024

Preamble

Whereas, the Imperial Court of Justice of TREDT, in its commitment to enhancing the legislative efficiency, representativeness, and governance of the TREDT Union, has determined the necessity for restructuring the legislative framework of the TREDT Union;

Whereas, it has been deemed essential to establish a bicameral legislative system to better serve the diverse needs and interests of the Union's constituents;

Therefore, by the authority vested in the Imperial Court of Justice of TREDT, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Article I: Establishment of the House of Representatives of the Members of Union.

The TREDT Legislative House shall be divided into two distinct bodies, the first of which shall be known as the "House of Representatives of the Members of Union," hereinafter referred to as the "Lower House."

The Lower House shall be composed of representative members of the TREDT Union from various constituencies.

The primary functions of the Lower House shall include, but not be limited to, the introduction and deliberation of legislation, representation of the populace, and oversight of the executive branch.

The head of the Lower House shall be designated as the "Central House Governor," who shall be elected from among the members of the Lower House. The Central House Governor shall preside over the sessions of the Lower House and ensure the orderly conduct of its business.

Article II: Establishment of the Council of States of Union.

The second body shall be known as the "Council of States of Union," hereinafter referred to as the "Upper House."

The Upper House shall be composed of representatives appointed by the governments of the member states of the TREDT Union. Each member state shall be entitled to a specified number of representatives as determined by population, economic contribution, and other relevant factors.

The primary functions of the Upper House shall include, but not be limited to:

- Reviewing and amending legislation passed by the Lower House to ensure thorough consideration and balanced decision-making.
- Representing the interests of the member states and providing a forum for states to voice their concerns and contribute to national policy.
- Ensuring the balance of power between the central authority and the member states, protecting the rights and sovereignty of the states within the Union.

The head of the Upper House shall be designated as the "President of Central Council," who shall be elected from among the members of the Upper House. The President of Central Council shall preside over the sessions of the Upper House and ensure the orderly conduct of its business.

The Upper House shall also have the authority to:

- Ratify treaties and international agreements.
- Approve appointments to key governmental positions, as proposed by the executive branch.
- Serve as a court of impeachment for officials accused of misconduct, with the power to remove them from office following a fair trial.

Article III: Transitional Provisions

This order shall take effect immediately upon its issuance.

The current TREDT Legislative House shall continue to function until the newly established Lower House and Upper House are duly constituted and their respective heads are elected.

The procedures for the election and appointment of representatives, as well as the appointment of the Central House Governor and President of Central Council, shall be detailed in subsequent directives by the Union Governor of TREDT Union.

Article IV: Publication and Dissemination

This order shall be published in the TREDT Times and disseminated to all relevant authorities and institutions for immediate implementation.

All member states of the TREDT Union are hereby instructed to facilitate the transition and cooperate fully with the directives set forth in this order.
